Meeting at the Table: Roman Catholic and Disciples Understandings

Margaret O’Gara and David Thompson
Disciples of Christ—Roman Catholic International Commission for Dialogue

The Eucharist (Lord’s Supper) is central for both Disciples and Roman Catholics, and every phase of the Disciples of Christ-Roman Catholic International Commission for Dialogue has regularly noted this centrality. Through four phases of dialogue the historic differences between the two communions have been identified along with many unexpected agreements and a convergence in understandings. This seminar explores the history of the dialogue, the theological understandings of the eucharist in each tradition, and the ongoing discussions surrounding the practice, role and meaning of this sacrament at the heart of our faith.

Margaret O’Gara is professor of theology at the Faculty of Theology in the University of St. Michael’s College, Toronto. She is a Roman Catholic who for 35 years has been appointed to numerous official ecumenical dialogue commissions.

David Thompson is Emeritus Professor of Modern Church History in the University of Cambridge and Fellow of Fitzwilliam College. His ecumenical experience ranges from the local and regional to the national and international.
